The "Health and Territories" Research Chair relies on a community of researchers brought together in the CleRMa (Clermont Recherche Management) research laboratory of the Univ Clermont Auvergne University (UCA) to examine the diversity of relationships between health actors and their territories and innovative models of intra- and inter-organisational cooperation. It also includes managers and health professionals from partner institutions. The Chair's work is focused on three main themes: - the current organisational models of health care institutions, - their medico-economic management, - the structuring of new organisational models (integrated care pathways, telemedicine, m-health, new hospital governance, etc.). The Chair's main work focuses on oncology and is supported by the institutions and professionals involved in this field, particularly in the Auvergne Rhône Alpes region.
